Welcome to TAO

At TAO, you find joy, meaning & purpose to life. We identify universal truths rooted in Torah, Kabbalah and other traditional Jewish sources and draw deeply on our inner truths, communal wisdom and spiritual traditions in accordance with the ongoing process of the living Torah.

Meditation, dance, chanting, song and music, present in Judaism throughout the ages, is an integral part of our services.

Join us and embark on a spiritual journey into your Jewish soul!

An online course in Hasidic

We want to make sure we don't lose the ability to continue to have services at the Rabbi's home, so please follow this parking procedure:

Drive to the Rabbi's house. An attendant will give you a handout with the places you may park. YOU MAY NOT PARK ANYWHERE YOU WISH. Rabbi Marc did a lot of work to secure parking places acceptable to his development's Board and the City. We must respect the allotments and not park elsewhere.

Please respect the neighbors if they should ask you to move your car or not park in their swale - even if they had previously given permission to park there. By being respectful of their wishes, it will guarantee fewer problems in the future.

NOTE: Services at Rabbi Marc and Paulina's home are for TAO Members Only. Members are welcome to bring guests. Dress comfortably!

Location

Saturday Service meets at Rabbi Marc & Paulina's home. Call the office for address and directions (954-252-1313).

To sponsor this month's service, call the office 954-252-1313.

Please bring non-perishable food items for our food drive as you join us in Shabbat spiritual prayer.

Upcoming Saturday Services

Saturday Services are on hold while the Rabbi, his development and the town of Davie work out parking details.

Thought based on the teachings of Rabbi Zalman Schachter-Shalomi. This online course offers rare insight to the meaning and value of the stories and teachings of Hasidism, a unique Jewish mystical movement begun in 18th century Eastern Europe. Using Reb Zalman's book, Wrapped in a Holy Flame: Teachings and Tales of the Hasidic Masters, and audio lectures of Reb Zalman from Naropa University, you are introduced to Hasidic thought through its stories and teachings. This course makes these teachings applicable to your own life, no matter what background you have in Judaism. The on-line instructor and course facilitator is Reb Zalman's student, Netanel Miles-Yepez, who edited the book. Click here for online class registration details.

Revive - New CD by Arik, Rabbi Marc's brother

I (Rabbi Arik) am thrilled to announce the arrival of my new Jewish music CD, Revive. There are some original and some favorites that I recorded with my musical collaborator and flute player extraordinaire, Maxxine Smith.

Maxxine and I recorded "Simu Lev" (which means "Give Your Heart" in Hebrew). People responded so positively, we decided to record another (slightly better produced) CD. We're excited about the result.

You can (preferably) buy the CDs directly from me. Revive is $18 and Simu Lev is $15. Or get both for only $30 plus $2 for shipping.

To order, please make a check payable to "Simu Lev" and send to: Arik Labowitz, 2203 Spaulding Ave., Berkeley, CA 94703 member of the Leadership Circle at the Summit to End Global Poverty. She participated in a gathering at the Washington Cathedral where a collaborative campaign was launched to highlight the urgent needs of women around the world and increase investment in their advancement by governments, multilateral institutions, and private entities.

The Honorable Madeleine Albright, former US Secretary of State, the Right Honorable Kim Campbell, the former Prime Minister of Canada and Her Excellency Mary Robinson, the former President of Ireland all addressed the packed sanctuary and celebrated the over 1 billion dollars in new investments from over 70 different organizations already pledged to the campaign.

Ms. Kolodny said of the effort, "The Women, Faith, and Development Alliance has done a remarkable job activating relief and advocacy organizations in the critical task of eliminating world poverty by empowering women and investing in their health, their basic human rights and their capacity to embark on small entrepreneurial ventures. Although ALEPH is not an economic development organization, we are proud to add our faith voice to this work and we encourage our members and affiliates to support the organizations that are giving millions to this cause. As one of the speakers at the summit said, poverty is not a force of nature. It results from our choices and so it can be ended. May we all do what we can to make that so!"

ALEPH Rabbinical Students Participate in Panim Retreat

From April 10-13, ALEPH rabbinical students Mark Novak and Abbey Michaelleski participated in a trans-denominational retreat sponsored by PANIM, the Institute for Jewish Leadership and Values. Held at Isabella Freedman, the retreat brought together students from eight different seminaries representing the entire spectrum of Jewish practice.

The CDs are also available on CD Baby (www.CDbaby.com), with some samples to listen to.

The event, entitled "Spirituality, Social Justice, and the Rabbinate", was led by Rabbi Sid Schwartz, founder of PANIM, Rabbi Melissa Weintraub, co-founder of ENCORE, and Rabbi Jonah Pesner, the founding director of JUST Congregations.

Students were given opportunities to delve into practical and theoretical issues concerning a rabbi's responsibility to both congregation and community. Workshops addressed social justice and the rabbi's responsibility as activist and prophet, and included text study, role playing, and multiple opportunities for one on one discussions.

Mark Novak said of the experience: "What a joy to davven, study, and play with students from the Academy for Jewish Religion (AJR), the Ziegler School of Rabbinical Studies, RRC, HUC, Chovevei Torah, JTS, and Hebrew College. And what a privilege it was to represent ALEPH. If I had only met students from other rabbinical programs, learned about their studies and shared what ALEPH is all about, dayenu. But better still, the experience re-affirmed that I am in the rabbinical program that is right for me. Many students were curious about ALEPH, and in the end, we might have even won a few "converts" to our program!"

ALEPH Rabbinic Student Rachel Barenblat Named One of Time Magazine's Top Bloggers

Time Magazine recently named Velveteen Rabbi, the blog of ALEPH rabbinic student Rachel Barenblat, one of its top 25 blogs in its first-ever annual blog index. Velveteen Rabbi is the only religion blog on the list, which includes The Huffington Post, Daily Kos, and Boing Boing, among others.

Rachel started blogging in 2003. "I wanted to write about Judaism," she says, "and to share both my love of Judaism and my learning about Judaism with a wider audience than I figured I could find in my small Massachusetts town." The blog's name is a reference to the children's book by Margery Williams, as is its tagline, "When can I run and play with the real rabbis?"

"Writing Velveteen Rabbi helped strengthen my relationship with Judaism," she says now. "I blogged about the process of applying to rabbinic school, and my readers rejoiced with me when I was accepted into the ALEPH rabbinic simcha program."

Torah, poetry, and creative festival observances are among the blog's most frequent subjects. Rachel's favorite posts include "Facing impermanence," an essay about her first experience serving on her shul's chevra kadisha, and "Being visible," an essay about wearing a kippah (or not.)

Rachel's background is in poetry. After completing ALEPH's Davenen Leadership Training Institute she began writing and posting d'var Torah poems (one poem each week, arising out of the parashat hashavua). But she's best known, on the internet, for her Velveteen Rabbi's Haggadah for Pesach, "a creative and joyful haggadah" which is used by families around the world. This year (2008) she released version 6.0 -- naturally, free for all, available on the blog.
